

Happy International day for us crips and cabbages of this world....yeepee! In all honesty the whole country is kind of quiet about it, there was no mention of it on BBC breakfast show at least from 8.00 AM when I switched on my tv. I guess OUCH will highlight it, thats enough the people at BBC news will say, afterall we just raised some money for them recently!

Today should be bank holiday for disabled people but then with over half of disabled population unemployed most of us are on perpetual bank holidays anyway...

The ODI is organising an event to celebrate our day and some of our organisations too are involved with some events, hey if we don't blow our trumpets ourselves no one will....so lets all blow the trumpet together...HAPPY DISABILITY DAY....
